+ Description

The park designed by Martine Rasclé, winner of the 2000 Golden Tree Trophy, extends over 5 hectares: it arouses multiple perceptions, from far and near. On the scale of the landscape of the Alsace plain, the park is a grove in the middle of crops and offers a refuge to wildlife. On the scale of the plot, the spaces follow one another, from the most mineral to the most natural, from the most visible to the most secret, from the most luminous to the most shady.
